How to Grade Memory Work: The aim is for students to be able to speak or write the memory work without missing a word or needing a prompt to keep going.

Example: There are 27 names of books in the New Testament. If the assignment is to recite these books, the goal is for the student to write or speak these 27 books in order, without help, from the first to the last. If the student says "Matthew, Mark, John, Acts..." the student missed the book of Luke. If the student says, "Matthew, Mark, Jude, John, Acts" the student has given a wrong word (Jude). In both cases, these are MISSED WORDS. If, however, the student gets stuck after saying, "Matthew, Mark, Luke, John..." and the parent administering the quiz gives help by saying the word "Acts", so that the student can continue on reciting more the memory work, this is called a PROMPT.

MISSED WORDS = 1 point off. PROMPTED WORDS = 2 points off

Grading Scale: Points off per recitation (S =satisfactory; any more off than S requires the student to study and try again so at least an S is earned.)

12 words or less:	0 off = A+	1 off = S
13 to 20 words:	0 off = A+	1 off = B	2 off = S
21 to 30 words:	0 off = A+	1 off = A-	2-3 off = B	4 off = S
31 or more:	0 off = A+	1 off = A	2-3 off = B+	4-5 off = C	6 off = S
